

The society's strength lies with its members – why not join today?

The Felpham Village Conservation Society (the Society) exists to conserve the historical, cultural and aesthetic significance of our built and natural environment. We are nonpolitical and inclusive, with membership open to every householder living within the Parish and those from without who use and value our facilities and environment. We seek to protect what is good; to improve those things that fall short; and to enhance our community wherever possible. The Society and its members:

Watch over the Conservation Area, Listed Buildings & Structures/Areas of Special Interest; Comment on significant developments around the village; Respond to consultations & proposals that might affect the community; Promote the knowledge & understanding of local history & heritage; Act as the 'Friends of Rectory Gardens' & watch over other open spaces; Run social events, e.g. quiz evening; Collaborate with local clubs & organisations; Provide the village with hanging baskets & a Christmas Tree; Run the Village Fete; Organise the monthly Beach Clean.

We have a strong committee of local people with an interest in promoting the values of the Society. To us, Felpham Village means the whole community both East and West and including all the estates and the new Blakes Mead development. The Society is inclusive of all those in Felpham who value village life in its broadest sense. If you want to preserve the Conservation Area and our wonderful Felpham heritage; if you want to protect against poor development or clean up shabby areas; if you want to continue to enjoy and enhance our open spaces or encourage the community spirit, the Society is for you.

The Society needs help with all aspect of its work and members are welcome to join one or more of our Working Groups. But we are also happy to have those who only want to attend events or even just support our efforts with their membership and goodwill. Members get regular updates, a quarterly newsletter and reduced entry for social activities. Please consider joining us today and strengthen the Society for the good of Felpham.
